The Window Of The Lord's Return: Are We The Tribulation Generation?

Synopsis

There seems to be no stone left unturned to come up with an apparently accurate assessment of how the Last Days will play out and our possible part in it.

This book teaches that the rapture will take place in the middle of Daniel's 70th week, which I appreciate. It is obvious that the author has spent a lot of time on this topic. (I have been teaching the mid-week rapture for more than forty years, and I have two books dealing with this topic here on .com, so I am obviously very interested in this topic. It doesn't prove anything, but I was teaching the mid-week rapture before John was saved, and he taught the pre-week rapture for most of his Christian ministry.) His book and his appearances on the Jim Bakker TV show have convinced many Christians that this is the correct viewpoint. I obviously agree with John Shorey on many details, but there are significant differences too. I agree with him that we can see the raptured saints in heaven right after the rapture in Rev. 7:9-17, but I believe this is an early look at the raptured saints in the book of Revelation before the super-important scroll of Rev. 5:1-10 has been opened, which is opened by the Lamb of God at Rev. 8:1. After the scroll is opened, we learn many super-important details about the end of this age, many details that had not been revealed before. The first thing we learn about after the scroll is opened is the sounding of the seven trumpets, which announce the return of the Lord Jesus and the rapture in the middle of the seven years with the sounding of the seventh and last trumpet. The seventh and last trumpet sounds in Rev. 11:15, and we see the resurrection and rapture of the saints in Rev. 12:5. (I discuss this point in significant detail in my books.) Further confirmation that the rapture will take place at this time is the resurrection and rapture of the two witnesses in Rev. 11:11, 12, which will take place in the middle of the seven years.
